Greetings, "Glad" Friends:

In offering this list of choice Gladiolus for 1928, containing about 160 varieties, we make no apology for including many varieties that are cheap in price, these have been propagated long enough to be plentiful.

A study of the list of the winning varieties at the shows reveals the surprising fact that a big percent of these cheaper kinds are winning consistently. Price indicates a scarcity or plentiful supply, in large measure.

Beautiful effects in the flower garden and home may be secured at small cost with the Gladiolus. It grows and blooms profusely on any soil if in full sunlight.

The primulinus types are growing in popularity—these dainty colored flowers are ideal for home decoration. Two or more kinds can be used together, the soft color shades blending beautifully. If you want something unusually lovely for home decoration, do not neglect to grow "Prims."

EXPLANATION

Prices are quoted in two sizes where possible. Large means 1¼ in. or larger and small will be from ¾ to 1¼ in. The smaller bulbs will produce bloom slightly smaller than the large, in most cases, but will produce more bulblets.
